Suicide doesn't discriminate and has a direct impact on a network of people who encircle someone who has died by suicide; family, friends, work mates and the local community.

Sadly 2,535 Australians took their own life in 2012 (ABS, 2012). A statistic that we aim to greatly reduce.

FOL is a network of people who want to help us reduce suicide in our community, by supporting a service that really cares about suicide and suicide prevention.

Lifeline Hunter Central Coast supports the community with the following services:

- Telephone Crisis Support

- Bereaved by suicide groups

Over 500 volunteers help to operate these services and save over 5000 lives a year.
